

KERMINY is a place of residences and agricultural research in art

Kerminy is a place of artistic residence, work, research, manufacturing and meetings located in the town of Rosporden (Finistère Sud, Brittany). This place works on its autonomy and deploys activities in this direction.

Agricultural development at the heart of the project is open to the involvement of residents (permanent or temporary).

Kerminy explores working methods aimed at autonomy at the intersection of the individual and the collective articulated to the specificity of the place: a manor house, its outbuildings, 12 hectares of meadows and woods.

The site opens in 2020 and begins a contributory process for its deployment ... Welcome!
