

KERMINY, a place for research residencies around agriculture and art

Kerminy is a meeting place for artistic, research, theoretical and cultural production residencies. Situated in Rosporden, in the west of France, between Quimper, Concarneau and Pont Aven (South-Finistère Sud), Kerminy works autonomously and explores new possibilities for working practices.

An agricultural activity at the heart of the place is developed to the commitment of both permanent and temporary residents.

Around its manor house, its outbuildings, and the 12,5 hectares of meadows and woods, Kerminy develops ongoing discursive individual and collective autonomous practices, producing knowledge and exchanges in an experimental way.

Kerminy opened last July 2020 and offers many possibilities to contribute... Everyone is welcome!

This winter is dedicated for construction site. Kerminy will reopen for artist residencies on March 29, 2021.
